[Amy is there to interview Aaron. The two are sitting in his office. LeBron James just left]

Aaron: You follow sports?

Amy: Oh my God, sports. I love them.

Aaron: Who’re your favorite teams?

Amy: The, uh, I like smaller teams, like not the big leagues. Like the Long Island... Mediums. Th- he Acorn... Pinecones.

Aaron: I haven’t heard of them.

Amy: The Fire Island Penguins. I like the Cincinnati Thunderwizards.

Aaron: You can stop.

Amy: The Orlando... Blooms.

Aaron: You can stop. Y-you don’t follow sports.

Amy: I’m sorry, I don’t. I don’t know anything about sports.

Aaron: You know what that’s okay though. Don’t be embarrassed…

Amy: I’m sorry

Aaron: No no don’t be embarrassed because I actually didn’t really follow sports either until I got this job.

Amy: Really?

Aaron: Yeah

Amy: Oh my God you have no idea what a huge relief that is. I-I was assigned this, this was not even my pitch.

Aaron: Right, so you’re doing the article on me?

Amy: Uh huh.

Aaron: Awesome.
Amy: I think they’re just kind of weird and strange. Grown men, wearing jerseys with another man’s name on it. Like are you in jail? Are you his bitch? It’s just…

Aaron: Right..Kind of like that one?

[Aaron points a framed jersey on his wall]

Amy: That’s different because it’s in a frame.

Aaron: I think sports brings people together, you know, it kinda forms a community.

Amy: That’s what I was saying.

Aaron: Right, yeah obviously. I-I’ll tell you another thing that’s great about this job is that I work with a lot of athletes, which uh means I work with a lot of um...

[Amy cuts him off while looking around and seeing pictures of him and black athletes]

Amy: Black people?

Aaron: [Still speaking] …injuries. What did you just say? Did you say black people?

Amy: No

Aaron: Do you have a problem with black people?

Amy: No, I love black people. I prefer black people.

Aaron: Do you have black friends?

Amy: Endless black friends.

Aaron: Can you show me pictures of your black friends on your phone?

Amy: You wanna see pictures on my phone of my black friends?

Aaron: You gotta have a lot of them.

Amy: [Flipping through her phone] I have so many. I’m just deciding which one because there’s so many. Here we go.

Aaron: Oh,great let’s see.
Amy: You’re gonna be eating your words. You ready?

Aaron: Yeah. I’m ready.

Amy: OK. Black friend. [Shows the phone]

Aaron: That is you and a white friend… and that is a black waiter. Pouring your water.

Amy: Let me find another one [Not even looking she puts her phone down] ooops… my phone died. Alright, well, I’ll just let you go back to doctoring.

Aaron: Great.

Amy: I’ll talk to your... [Gesturing towards where his assistant is]

Aaron: Cheryl.

Amy: Cheryl….about when we can meet again.

Aaron: Great.

[Amy heads out]
